Bethel board backs Cole

The Bethel Board of Selectmen is standing solidly behind Town Manager Scott Cole in the ongoing dispute between Cole and Bethel Police Chief Alan Carr.

Following 20 minutes of discussion at a special meeting Monday evening, the five board members voted unanimously to take no action on a two-page, single-spaced letter of grievances Carr filed against Cole on Feb. 28.

Carr's grievances included allegations that by a variety of actions - including interfering in departmental personnel and budget matters Cole had sought to undermine Carr's authority and the Police Department itself. (Carr's allegations and Cole's responses to them were reported in detail in The Citizen's April 3 edition. That article will remain available online at bethelcitizen.com, until April 17.)

After conferring with the town's attorney, the selectmen took up Carr's com-

At Cole's request, discussions regarding the complaints and his responses were held in public sessions. In his written response to the police chief's letter, Cole broke the letter up into eight topics, each of which the selectmen discussed Monday. - Each of the topics was dismissed after brief comment. For example, on the matter of Cole's interference in Police Department affairs, with the alleged intention of undermining the chief's authority, Don Bennett was the only selectman to speak.

"The fact of the matter is that in any of these happenings in town affairs, you just have the town manager suggesting different ways of doing things, and that is ultimately what he is hired for," Bennett said.

"I think other departments could offer up the same complaint, and I think the complaints would be perceived the same way as I see it here it's simply not a complaint, it's something you live with when you're in this situation [employed in a town govern-

At that point Board Chairman Stan Howe asked if there were other comments, and there were none.

On the question of Cole's handling of the Police Department budget, the selectman agreed that the town manager's decisions were consistent both with voters' intent and generally accepted accounting practices.

'Feed me, Seymour!'

Like Audrey, the insatiably carniverous houseplant in 'Little Shop of Horrors,' this ruffed grouse on the Bethel Inn golf course craves constant feeding, if not of fresh flesh, at least tasty human handouts of sunflower seeds. The bird is not shy about approaching skiers on the cross-country trails, and in some cases, pulling on a pant leg to let the wearer know a small toll is expected in exchange for safe passage.

Out on the Bethel Inn's winter rough, grouse encounters are now par for the course

'We were cheek to jowl, and he nailed me," said Frank Vogt

An avid birdwatcher, Vogt recently had an avian experience unlike any other in his memory.

He had heard reports through Pete Morin, who runs the cross-country ski shop at the Bethel Inn, of a ruffed grouse that was regularly approaching skiers on inn trails. Morin first encountered the bird himself several weeks ago, while he was driving along the trails on the BI snowmobile.

The grouse approached Morin and was unafraid of the sound of the engine.

Then skiers began reporting the bird was coming out of the woods toward them, Morin said. Some fed the grouse.

"I started to tell people coming to ski to watch out for him," Morin said.

Skeptical skiers would return convinced — after having their pant legs pecked.

Vogt, a skier himself, decided it was time to investigate. He ventured out on the trail alone, eventually coming upon a woman skier who had stopped. He realized she was looking at the grouse, which was standing at her feet.

Vogt joined her to marvel at the bird's boldness. "I put my ski pole out, and he hopped up and started to climb up it," he said. "I lifted the pole up a little bit, and he climbed See GROUSE, Page 4

The Maine Conservation School will become the site for the new "University of Maine 4-H Camp and Learning Center at Bryant Pond," thanks to collaboration announced last week among University of Maine Cooperative Extension, the Pine Tree State 4-H Foundation and the Maine Conser-petition targets Route 2 potholes

Gilead

By ALISON ALOISIO

As the Maine Department of Transportation struggles to deal with roads emerging from one of the worst winters in years, a Gilead man is circulating a petition asking the state to pay particular attention to Route 2.

"I've driven better logging roads than this," said Joe Taylor.

Some parts of the road have been, or are being, reconstructed as part of a phased improvement project.

'We've had frost heaves on roads where there have never been frost heaves before.'

> MARK HUME MDOT Engineer

Taylor said he expects the sections currently under construction to be bumpy.

But there are other stretches untouched by construction where the most recent layer of pavement has disintegrated, leaving behind a very rough surface, he said. And, he said, "there are potholes a foot deep," From where the construction ends [traveling west], "the potholes are bad up past the Wild River," he said. He hasn't seen Route 2 in such poor shape since 1988, when, he said, a layer of pavement was put down to improve travel on the road. Taylor said MDOT crews were out last week putting

'MARCH FOR BABIES'

To the Editor:

It's time to dust off your walking shoes and get ready for Bethel's 11th annual March of Dimes Walk. Join the "March for Babies" and walk to celebrate a baby in your life Sunday, May 4, at the Bethel Family Health Center.

Over the past seven decades, millions of babies have been saved from death or disability thanks to advances made by March of Dimes-funded scientists. That's why: Polio is history more premature babies survive thanks to surfactant therapy — families of sick babies get help in coping through NICU Family Support - and more parents know the joy of having a healthy baby.

You can join the Bethel community in helping to make sure every baby is born healthy by creating a team and raising money, sponsoring a walker or purchasing a mile marker. To register for the walk, go to marchforbabies.org or call Ellie Andrews at 824-3539. Info is also available at the Bethel Family Health Center.

L. JOSEPH VISITS LEWIN CENTER

To the Editor:

Last Friday evening and Saturday morning, I was privileged to be a member of a small group at the Lewin Center enjoying the gentle manners, brilliant mind, and wide experience of Lennox Joseph, Ph.D.. Joseph was not new to Bethel, since he was a former president and CEO of NTL (National Training Laboratories) which was started in Bethel many years ago. However, I didn't know that he has recently become an advisor to the World Bank where I had been employed for many years.

He is involved with assisting individuals and groups in developing countries with maintaining their resilience in the face of the charges that life brings when some sort of development is underway even if the country remains stagnant.

The theme of his sessions was resilience. How can people retain their resilience in the face of change, within them or outside of them. It is a good and useful subject since we all go through change in our lives and resilience is a most valuable characteristic.

Joseph opened the meeting by asking us to answer some questions about hope, areas of life where hope is absent, and our experience with helplessness. This was followed by an analysis of resilience: different levels of analysis and what was necessary to maintain resilience. As one who is dealing with obvious physical change (at least) I found his focus on resilience most inspiring, and I did think his work for the Bank should be much appreciated.

ACCEPT RESPONSIBILITY

To the Editor:

Our esteemed governor recently signed into legislation the banning of lighters that might seem attractive to children. He appeared proud of this act which made Maine the first to have such a law. The legislation originated because a 6-year-old boy was playing with such a lighter in a store and got burned. It's heart wrenching when a child gets hurt.

Perhaps rakes should also be banned so that children would no longer get hurt playing in piles of leaves. Maybe all homes in which children enter and all public places should be required to eliminate all items that could possibly harm a child.

To name a few: razors, woodstoves and furnaces, all hot beverages and coffee pots, tools, curling irons, open shelving, sewing machines, tools, stairs, knitting needles, fingernail files.

bicycles, faucets that spew hot water, and swing sets. Maybe Maine could be the first child-safe state.

Or, maybe all potentially harmful items should be under lock

Or, maybe parents should re-assume the parenting role and teach their children that some things are off limits to them for a variety of reasons. "Don't Touch," if correctly taught is easily understood by toddlers. Maybe both parents and children should accept responsibility for the consequences when these two little words are disobeyed.

Apparently the legislatures in sales-tax-free New Hampshire think parents are capable of disciplining their own children. Laurie Brown

ON REDWOODS, SNOW SCULPTURE

To the Editor:

As a '60's era Bethel resident and a Californian for the last 30 years or so, I urge my former fellow citizens to reject Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger's offer of a giant redwood log. First, California doesn't have any redwoods to spare, and second, snow sculpture has the signal virtue of melting — eventually.

END THE SILENCE — ATTEND REACH SPEAK OUT

Ever wonder what the annual Speak Out hosted by REACH (Rape Education and Crisis Hotline) is about? It is a Community event. All older teens and adults are welcome to attend, as speakers or as audience members.

Although some people may feel that sexual abuse and assault are talked about too much, generally the focus when it is reported on TV and in the papers is on yet another, and another, and another incident that has occurred. People may shake their heads, and move on - not wanting to think about "such stuff," or not believing that sexual assault happens so frequently; others may note that this "never happened in their day,"

More needs to happen than people shaking their heads after sexual assault happens. Sexual abuse, unfortunately, has occurred for generations and generations. REACH routinely works with adults in their 30s, 40s, 50s, and 60s who were sexually abused as children.

Ending sexual violence is a community issue. There needs to be an absolutely clear message that those victimized will be believed and not blamed for what has occurred to them, and that offenders will be held accountable for their actions.

The Speak Out provides a safe place (no press) for survivors of sexual assault, and those that care about them, to speak out themselves, if they so choose, or to listen to others. If a person prefers to have someone else read some of their writing, that is an option.

Why a Speak Out? Although difficult, it can also be empowering to say things out loud, to share writings, artwork, music or body movement that are part of one's healing process. The sense of isolation that most survivors feel can be broken by listening to others. In a safe, supportive, nonjudgmental environment, it is reinforced that survivors are in no way responsible for what occurred to them, and, hopefully, they can let go of any shame they have carried. Survivors have an opportunity to learn from one another what has been meaningful during each person's recovery process. Speak Out is also a way for loved ones to show support for survivors, and have a public presence that says we must bring an end to sexual violence.

For over 25 years, REACH has been hosting an annual Speak Out in the Oxford Hills area. This is your personal invitation to attend one of the three Speak Outs REACH is hosting this April during Sexual Assault Awareness month: on April 13, Sunday, at the Norway Universalist Church; on April 20 at the Bridgton Community Center; and on April 27 at the UCC Green Church in Mexico. All Speak Outs begin at 2 p.m.

It would be helpful if you are going to speak, show artwork or perform music, if you would call the REACH office at 743-9777.

Bethel A CHANCE TO WORK FOR YOU

To the Editor:

I want to thank everyone who came out to vote at the Andover Town Meeting. The turnout was a clear message of how much we all care about our community.

To all those who have questions and concerns about our town's operations, please come and attend the selectmen's meetings which are held every Tuesday.

My goal as your newest selectman will be to help provide information and facts to citizens on the decisions that affect our tax dollars and future. Andover is a great place to live and I am honored to have a chance to work for you.

The major point Carr raised involved approximately $27,000 reimbursed to Bethel from Bridgton, to cover Bethel's cost in sending an officer later hired away by Bridgton to the Maine Criminal Justice Academy.

Cole had the money put back in the town's general fund: Carr contended it should have been put back in the Police Department budget.

Cole made the right decision, the selectmen said.

"I've been involved in the last three or four town audits," said Selectman Bob Everett. "and the auditor hasn't picked up on anything as far as money being returned to the town going into the wrong account."

Everett said he had also spoken with a retired state auditor, and been told: "any money, whether it comes back from the sewer, the highway department, has to go into the general fund before it goes anywhere else.'

Other complaints were dismissed as lacking concrete evidence or, in one case, "just pure hearsay.'

Prior to Monday evening's vote. Bennett told his fellow selectmen: "We've gone down through and discussed this at some length, and it certainly is something I know the rest of you have pored over and probably laid awake nights and thought about, as I have." But, he concluded, "I just don't see how we can go any further with it, I really don't." In March 2004, when former Bethel Police Chief Darren Tripp, who had been fired by Cole, appealed to the Board of Selectmen, his appeal was rejected 3-2, with Selectmen Don Bennett and Jack Cross voting in the minority.

On Monday, both men joined the other three members of the board in voting unanimously to take no further action on Carr's complaint.

Neither Carr nor his attorney would comment on Monday's action. Cole also declined comment.

Financial plan A goal of the 4-H Foundation will be to develop an endowment to help maintain the facilities at Bryant Pond, as well as to support the camp and learning center, according to the release. The current Maine Conservation School Board of Directors and staff has been working together with the Pine Tree State 4-H Foundation Board, University of Maine Cooperative Extension staff and the Oxford County Extension Association to plan and implement the merger, The camp's assets have been transferred to the Pine Tree State 4-H Foundation, as part of the University of Maine's ongoing comprehensive fundraising campaign, and a review is now underway to determine the new camp staffing plan, including hiring summer staff.

"We're working on the staff becoming University of Maine Cooperative Extension employees," said Jennings.

Camp history

According to the MCS website, in 1956 Gov. Edmund Muskie initiated an effort to establish a conservation education program.

In the same year, Lillian Waterhouse donated her summer estate on Bryant Pond to the newly-formed Conservation Education Foundation of Maine, with the intent that it be used as a school for the instruction in natural resource conservation.

The Maine Conservation School was established on the property.

In subsequent years, a dormitory and dining hall/classroom were built.

In 1997, a scholarship program using money generated by the auction of five Maine moose hunting permits was instituted. Since then, that program has assisted more than 200 young people in attending the camp each year.

Andover fire truck vote questioned

ANDOVER—Selectmen said Tuesday they planned to listen to an audiotape of the March 15 annual Town Meeting to clarify discussion on an article to appropriate $100,000 toward the purchase of a fire truck. The money supplemented a FEMA grant awarded for the purchase of a $350,000 truck. Some residents at Town Meeting favored establishing a committee to oversee the specifications to be submitted for the construction ...of the vehicle. The town must take delivery of the truck, with ; FEMA approval, within a year of receiving the grant. But selectmen said that as a result of information provided at the Town Meeting by Fire Chief Ken Dixon, many voters believed Andover had only 45 days from the awarding of the grant in mid-February to sign a contract for the truck, in order to meet FEMA's timeline requirements. Residents then declined to form the committee. At Tuesday's selectmen's meeting, however, chairman Jeff Rainey said the board had learned that the 45-day parameter was only an example, not a set requirement. "I do think it was interpreted wrong," he said. (Dixon did not attend Tuesday's meeting.) New selectman Susan Merrow said : "she was disappointed that the selectmen had not reviewed the grant before the Town Meeting in order to better inform voters. Kevin Scott said he felt townspeople had been misled, and the redecision made was based on inaccurate information. Rainey said Scott had valid concerns about the vote, and the selectmen would listen to the meeting tape to help decide what they might , do. Selectmen said bids on the truck are due April 18, and an AFD/selectmen's workshop, open to the public, is expected to take place April 20. An official decision by the board on the next step would then follow April 22. The board also voted to , draw up a policy to guide the town in the future in applying for grants. The policy would be voted upon at a future Town Meet-

The next thing he knew, the bird pecked his ear.

"He wasn't aggressive. It was curiosity," said Vogt.

Whatever the reason, "it drew quite a bit of blood," he said. Vogt returned to the ski shop and told the story.

"I thought people would think I was exaggerating," he said. "It was the most bizarre experience I've had in 60 years in the woods." Vogt and others speculated the bird had had the experience of being around people before, and learned "that when people came by, something good would happen," Vogt said.

The next day, he and his neighbor, Bill Frongillo, returned to the trail to try to document the bird's behavior.

cold patch on some of the worst places.

He has gathered about 100 signatures on a petition asking MDOT to remove the old pavement and put down new this summer,

Taylor said he has collected signatures from both sides of the Maine/New Hampshire

In 2004, Taylor said, he circulated a similar petition asking the state to put down a layer of "skinny mix," a superficial pavement he hoped would suffice until the reconstruction project could be implemented.

After gathering about 250 signatures, he sent the petition to MDOT and the governor's office. He received a reply back from the governor,

But, four years later, the pavement is giving out.

Taylor said.

It's now worse than a logging road, he said. "At least a logging road you can grade," Taylor said.

He said he realizes this winter has been particularly bad on roads, and Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont are all trying to cope.

"But I bet there isn't a place that can hold a candle to Gilead, Maine," he said.

Taylor said he has placed his petitions at Brooks Brothers, Crossroads Diner and Brown's Mobil in Bethel, and at the West Bethel Country Store.

MDOT view

Mark Hume, a regional engineer with MDOT, confirmed that cold patch was being applied along Route 2. "Crews will be out to spot treat it and do pothole patches," he said.

When paving plants open for the summer, crews will then apply a longer-lasting hot patch, he said.

Hume said that during the course of the winter water got in between the layers of pavement, causing "delamination." "There have been a lot of freeze/thaw cycles," he said.

This has been one of the worst winters for road damage statewide in years, according to Hume.

"We've had frost heaves on roads where there have never been frost heaves before," he said.

Paving plans

MDOT currently plans short-term work on one of two sections of Route 2 yet to be reconstructed.

There are no plans to pave the two-mile portion that begins at the end of the current construction section and stretches to the state border, he said.

That's because the work there is scheduled to get underway in 2009, and it's not worth it to pave before then,

There are plans, Hume said, to do maintenance paving this summer on the second section, which stretches from the intersection of Route 113 back toward Bethel, for a distance of about 2,3 miles.

MDOT hopes the paving

"will hold that last section together until we can rebuild it," said Hume.

That section is scheduled to be advertised for bid in 2011, he şaid.

He confirmed that the last time paving took place on Route 2 in the Gilead area was

That work was not part of the routine paving schedule.

"We do some additional paving not in the scheduled maintenance," Hume said. "We have scheduled paving, and we have what we call 'basket case projects,' that do really need attention."

Bethel

by Donald G. Behnett Skiing remained in full swing through the past weekend. Highway rebuilding of Route 2 west shows what modern earth-moving techniques can accomplish. Steps are being taken to allow SAD44 to remain independent. Who is watching the separate planning boards?

Locke Summit Estates joins Will View in home development Locke Summit Estates in the Swan's Corner-Sunday River part of North Bethel is open for business. Thanks to a heavy- and late-snow season, plenty of ski travelers to and from Sunday River will see the development's new sign and road-clearing activity as they pass by. Another way to describe the location is across the road from Riverbend Condos. Entrance to the new project will be at the landing zone of the former Gould Academy ski jump.

"David "Fuzzy" Thurston is the managing partner and is named as the contact person in the development's website www.lockesummitestates. com. The owners will operate their sales program through an agency of Prudential — Rush Realty. Rush has offices in Exeter, Portsmouth, Hampton and Dover, N.H., plus two Massachusetts offices at Newburyport and Salisbury. The project will offer lots of twoplus acres in size.

April Love If you were around Bethel this weekend, you might have wondered if Maine really did separate from Massachusetts. Haven't seen so many Massa-

I did this weekend. Sunday River Ski Resort was booming. It is April; skiing is all over - No? On Sunday Route 2 had as many cars heading to the ski area as there were cars heading south. Parking lots at South Ridge, Phoenix Well, White Cap, Barker Mountain, Brookside and all the overflow areas were full. Tour buses for ski groups were all over the place.

Sunday River Ski Touring usually has a grassy field next to the inn this time of year. But they had skiers out skiing and in the shop snacking. At Artist Bridge the ice was out of the river but water flow there was only average or below-average level. Up the valley though roadside snow banks are high enough to give the narrow road a tunnel effect. Bethel Inn's ski shop was closed but it looked like their trails were fully snow-covered.

If you have not kept up with Viking Village changes over the past 40 some years, it would be worth your while to tour what could be called the galleria of rustic home styles. Considering that the village started out with pretty modest ski homes, and there is not space enough for true McMansions, the trend to more artfully and sophisticated designs is eye-catching.

Is There a Limit to Deforestation? One more feature of this year's abundant snowfall is the way snow has made clearings on mountainsides more vividly noticeable to the casual sightseer. A drive up Sunday River valley and particularly up the Monkey Brook Road toward the Jordan Grand Hotel presents quite a spectacle. What is this going to eventually mean to our environment? Just to the west of Bethel spreads the White Mountain National Forest.

The national forest was cre-

ADDISON AND MADISON TEAM UP FOR THE MARCH OF DIMES—The Bethel March of Dimes "Walk for Babies," scheduled for May 4, will have "co-ambassadors" this year. ated to prevent another natural catastrophe from happening, e.g. the fires and drought brought on by over logging in New Hampshire and western Maine more than a century ago. Are we playing déjà vu all over again? Who watches the big picture?

Route 2 west From Pleasant River along Route 2 into Gilead work has progressed well through the winter season on the once-in-alifetime straightening and rebuilding of our main highway westward. For now the most noticeable change for the better is a new bridge over Pleasant River. When you stand on the newly graded roadbed west of the bridge and look back at West Bethel village — by gosh it is straight — no twists and turns. Compared to what we have driven over for the 60 years that I know of, it is a miracle. It is easy to imagine our New Hampshire and Vermont friends zooming into West Bethel center at over 60

Reducing the rocky ledge beyond the old Mason Farm is inching along. The high bluff that was standing next to the road last fall has been flattened so that the highway will have a straight, new path headed toward the Bog Road intersection.

When I visited this spot last November, two rock hounds from New Hampshire were happily picking through recently blasted loose rock looking for possibly interesting mineral discoveries. Sunday. the same men were back again and still at it. Even though they have not made any highvalue finds, they were still pleased at the opportunity to have so much rock opened by the blasting.

Freeing SAD44

Representative Tim Carter had proposed an amendment to Maine's school district consolidation law that would have allowed SAD44 and Rangeley's school unit to remain "un-merged" or independent. Carter's justification was that the SAD44 and Rangeley areas were too sparsely populated — less than 50 people per square mile — to realistically collect the 1,200 students needed to comply with the law. If you don't have 1,200 students, then you have to merge with another school body that will make up the difference. The Legislature was assembling a package of fixes for the school law to send to the governor and Carter's amendment was given a majority vote of acceptance. When the whole package got to the governor however, it turned out he agreed with Carter's fix but saw dangers in other parts of the bill and vetoed the bill. So SAD44 is still not free.

To find a McIntosh apple in the produce section of Publix at Hunter's Creek in Florida, I always looked for the product sticker with a #4019. This year I found that two choices, #4019 and #4152, were McIntosh numbers. (?) OK, so back in Bethel at Glidden's Shop 'N Save, we went to the apple section of the produce table and Kathy picked out four Mac's for me. At home I looked at the "Bethel" apples and found, you guessed it, a #4152 sticker on each apple.

"Maddie's grandma, Lisa Pivin, has her own exciting news to report. She has been accepted in the nursing school of Central Maine Medical Center. This fall Lisa will attend classes twice a week at the Rumford Hospital campus and will do her clinical stint there twice a week as well. She is currently working in the Emergency Room at Rumford Hospital as a secretary. She allows that things can be pretty exciting there.

This summer Lisa will take a refresher course in anatomy and physiology at Southern Maine Community College in preparation for the fall semester. Her nursing program will take two years altogether. When I asked if she had any area of specialization, Lisa replied that right now she has a special interest in obstetrics and prenatal care, but acknowledges that that could change with time and experience. Best wishes for a successful new career, Lisa!

Last Friday I rode down to Portland with our daughter, Martha Siegel, and granddaughter, Molly, who was representing Telstar Middle School at the state geography bee, sponsored by National Geographic. Also there, representing Woodstock Elementary School, was fourth-grader Liam Gallagher of Woodstock. All the contestants were told at the outset that, win or lose, they should be very proud to be part of a group of only 100 students from the entire state. There were some very proud families and teachers, to be Afterward we went to the Portland Art Museum where we started at the top and worked our way down from fourth to first floor. This was Molly's first visit to this excellent little museum, and she seemed to enjoy it. I especially liked the exhibit of N. C. Wyeth's paintings. We have a few books that were illustrated by Wyeth, and his paintings are very special.

Today I will be picking up our oldest granddaughter, Elisabeth Stancioff, to take her down to Brown University, one of the schools where she has been accepted for the fall semester. Elisabeth must harrow her choices and make a decision by the end of this month, so this revisit will, it's

Monday evening, I called Bob in Texas and talked with him for close to two hours. Rather we laughed most of the time. Bob and Wilma are having a new house built and are having a good time supervising. Bob is supervisor along with the puppies. Then they have to walk down by the Water Moccasin race. Bob says his son-in-law caught a wicked good bass in there a couple of weeks ago. Believe it was 26 inches and heavy. That drove Bob to go and get his license on the hot foot. Bob caught a 3-inch sun fish! Tuesday, Ray and puppies came up. Ray brought in some wood for us and I kept the pups entertained. Or is that they entertained me? The three of them were in the recliner with me. Buster was happy between my legs, Andy part way up my right leg and Maggie just flopped over my left and on Andy. Had to scratch her belly, Andy's ears and switch to Buster on each fourth scratch. All were happy.

Anita has been sick with a cold since Friday night. She came home from Bingo and settled in. Just reached out and grabbed her with a heavy hand. She is feeling much better today. I think it was the extra big Hack Attack Sandwich I made for her breakfast. She told me I needed much more practice. Guess that is payback for all the times I tell her she needs practice with Nissu and a few other things. But now she has handed the cold off to me.

I stopped and had the Greenwood Firemen's Association wash Anita's car this afternoon. Had a burger and soda while I waited and caught up on the entire goings on around town. Also had a very nice visit with Betsy Foster. It's always nice to visit with Betsy. It really disturbs me that just two families were out doing the Car Wash and cooking up goodies. The Wakefield's and Goodwin's along with William Curtis were all working to raise money for muchneeded Personnel Protective Equipment. These young families believe in the Fire Department and are willing to spend their family time doing this important work. But they should not have to do this work. The townspeople need to provide this. Yet it was cut because of underhanded feelings. And just enough people joined in to reduce the Fire Department budget. Shame, shame!

We had a call from Florida this morning. Friends were expecting another 90-degree day. Must be a tough life having to run the air conditioner.

Then we had a call from Jim who was in the facility at Westover. He is a bit further north in Florida and he was happy with the 80's. I sent Jim a picture from back in December and thought about in March, Expect he would/ couldn't take that though.

Enough for this week. The cold has a firm hold on me and Ray says I need to crack open that half gallon and just throw the cap away. They would have to carry me away instead. Wicked good idea on the throwing away the cap. Hot toddy and several quilts will sweat it out of you.

But we do need to remember all our family members, friends and neighbors that need our prayers and good thoughts. There are a number of those that are in need. Joyce keeps me informed along with several others. So lets get together and make everyone well. A simple little smile will go along way too.

Gileaa

Hugh and I stopped by Tim and Michele's this past Sunday to check on the grandchildren, William, Annie, Ajay and Sidney. They were having a great time outside playing, since there was a brief moment of good weather. The sun was shining and it was quite warm. There was plenty of mud to make ditches in for the water to run off. There is plenty of snow to slide on,

We had to make our weekly grocery-shopping trip to Shaw's and ran into Bill and Gale Tout. They were just as enthusiastic as we were to be there shopping.

My brother, Steve McLain, stopped by this past weekend to pick up a couple of the new books on Gliead Cemeteries that the Gilead Historical Society has published.

Hugh and I went to the monthly meeting of the Oxford County Mineral and Gem Association at Oxford Hills Comprehensive High School in South Paris. Dennis Brown, president, presided over the meeting and then gave a lecture on Mineral Classification. He discussed formulas and explained how anyone can look at the formula and determine what Mineral Class it belongs to. The Mineral club has a website: www. oxfordcountymineralandgemassociation.blogspot.com

Gilead Historical Society The GHS committee members for the Friends and Family Day are hard at work. The event is on Saturday, June 21. Bev has made contact with Bobo T. Clown and he is planning on coming to entertain the children and had plenty of new ideas for them. Norm Buttrick is hard at work securing music for the day. Celia Broomhall is gathering information on her house on the Bog Road and is hoping that there can be a historical display that will include historic houses of Gilead. So anyone with information on some of the old houses, please get hold of the GHS and share any information that you might have.

Our two newest members are Sandra Laughy and Mary Tyler. They grew up in Gilead and have returned here. Sandra is hard at work completing the quilt that will be raffled. There will be tickets available shortly from the members.

Anyone who would like to give us a hand to make this day a community celebration for Gilead, should give a call to one of the members. We are going to need a lot of help.

Details of the events of the day will be revealed in this column as time goes on or check out the website www.gileadhistoricalsociety.blogspot. I received a note this past week from the husband of one of our life members, Mary Telfer. We are saddened to hear that Mary passed away a few months ago. In his note he mentioned how much she enjoyed traveling to this area when she was researching her family history, and also, that they had been married for 58

Hallelujah!... Spring has ... sprung. Bob saw a flock : of geese in Bethel, perhaps the same flock Melanie saw in Portland last. week? Even better than that, Penny had three robins at her house this morning.

Jen Aldrich, a junior at Æelstar, was chosen to give a speech portraying her feelings about life in her home town. I think Upton was well represented by this talented teen. I'd like to have heard her speech to learn the similarities and the differences of a young person's viewpoint in comparison to the views of those of us who can no longer claim that identification.

Some of us were born here and/or have had family roots: here for centuries. Some people moved here 60, 40, 20 orfive years ago; maybe to enjoy the scenery, maybe to get away from the hustle and bustle of city life with its traffic and stringent zoning laws, maybe as a result of an inheritance, maybe to retire, or maybe to experience a nostalgic idea of what life in a small town should be. Some folks are content with their decision to live here, some aren't and feel "stuck." Whenever and for whatever reason we came to live here, here we are, individuals and groups with different dreams, hopes and plans for ourselves and our

Well, be that as it may. Recent events seem to require candidates for political office to make the more interesting events in their sex lives public. Or, at least confess that they have nothing to confess. I admit that I am biologically hard-wired to notice passing examples of fertiline archi ands, feet, etc. But this is for the record only. It's a kind of courtesy. tecture, features, movement, gestures, tresses, smiles, attire

The Oval Office entertainments of a recent president and the adventures of the Amphibious Senator from Massachusetts are old history and need no revisiting. There are more recent events that shed light on the wild goings on at the busy crossroads where sex and politics meet. Gov. Patterson's public announcement that he and his wife, have loved not wisely, but too widely so not very interesting in itself. After all, a recent Gallup poll indicates that 54% percent of Americans have personal knowledge of an adulterer, implying that we have nearly another hundred million other foolers-around out there. The news that the Guy listed part of the expenses of his trysts on his official credit card under

'professional services' and 'constituency services' headings seems especially noteworthy. The first reflects poorly on the woman in question. The second is a little alarming. I hope none of the ladies in Maine's second congressional district understand consultuency services in this form. I'm well beyond that sort of thing, and it would be inconsistent with the dignity of a vestryman in the Traditional Anglican Church to offer them.

The sexual indulgences of ex-Governor Spitzer interests me in another way. This pimple on the cosmic gluteus maximus had a well-established reputation as a devious, arrogant, power-hungry bully. Yet it took a scandal about his lavish expenditures on a young professional to boost him out of office. There were solider reasons for ejecting him.

The sex life of ex-governor McGreevey of NJ has taken a far weirder turn since his ex-wife has taken him to rourt. The legal issue here is whether she knew he was homosexual when she married him. I'm inclined to think she did, since I'd heard about this lavender passions from fellow students in his high school long before the scandal that forced his resignation broke. But the revelations sink to a new level of squalor when an aide testifies that the three of them sometimes shared a bed. Or, as a New York Post headline put it, "THE SEX WAS 3-MENDOUS".

Out west, in Detroit, the mayor is in hot water for another sexual transgression. The Republicans had their season of sexual scandal last year. As it was in the past, and in the present, so it will be in the future.

There seem to be some important lessons about politicians and sex. Should voters trust leading of whom they have no personal knowledge when their spouses can't trust them to respect the marriage bonds? Should we trust men who can't control their own sippers to control ever larger spheres of our lives? Can we believe that men who risked careers and reputations they took years to build for a momentary pleasure will be able to resist the more dangerous tempts.

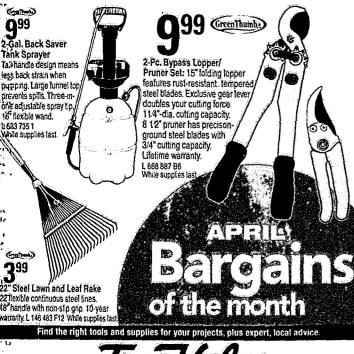

Politicians should take pains to commit to memory Samuel Johnson's dictum: "Sex: the expensis damnable, the position is ridiculous, and the pleasure fleeting? Amen to that,

I've heard a rumor that spring has sprung. Pam Pace informs me that she saw a whole flock of robins the other day. Edna White always said that the first sign of spring was when you smelled a skunk. I haven't seen a robin or smelled a skunk yet, but I'm hoping. I also hope that last Friday was the last time that I have to brush snow off my car for a few months, boy am I sick of doing that.

by Richard Grover A couple weeks ago on Saturday Snuffy and I decided it a perfect day to climb Caribou Mountain. It was cold and windy, and there was a hard crust on the snow. I have found over the past several years that these conditions make for good early spring hiking. At that time there was still about four feet of snow on the ground, so most of the rocks and roots that try to trip you up in the summer were covered. I did decide to wear my aluminum frame snowshoes because the snow usually begins to soften by about

We left the truck at the end of the plowed road in front of Pooh Corner Farm at the end of the Bog Road and started hiking about 9:30 a.m. We had good hiking conditions until we came to the first small brook crossing. Due to the early winter wet weather and the heavy snow that also came early, the ground never froze much in the woods; the small brooks also never had much ice cover, and because of recent thaws they were now mostly open. Because the snow was still about four feet deep, crossing the brooks on snowshoes was a bit of a an abrupt end, with a vertical drop of four feet to the brooks and then continued with a four-foot vertical climb on the other side.

At one such crossing I attempted to jump across an open brook gully to the snow on the other side, only to pull a muscle in the landing leg. Each step with my right foot brought a sharp pain until after I had continued walking for some time; then the pain went away, and hiking was okay again. As we neared the top of the mountain, the air got colder (low 20s), the terrain got steeper, and a thin layer of ice covered all the tree branches and top layer of snow crust. This made for a sparkling winter wonderland, but the fourinch layer of soft snow under the top crust gave me trouble on the steep slopes. My snowshoes broke through the top layer of crust, but the soft snow and top crust kept the teeth on the bottoms of the snowshoes from penetrating the hard snow crust beneath; the result was that my snowshoes slipped backward. Then I either had to crawl or grab some nearby branches to pull myself up to the next less steep area!

I discovered that the four to five feet of snow hid many of the trail markers and signs. I also found that tree limbs that were high overhead in summer were now "in my face!" We kept trudging ever higher, until the trail (hard to find in places) disappeared into the small spruce trees within a few hundred yards of the sum-

At that point we met a younger couple coming down from above. They told me to be careful on the ledges because the ice on the crust made travel difficult there.

As Snuffy and I broke out of the trees onto the barren ledges at the summit, a stiff north wind fairly took my breath away!

I watched Snuffy approach the final summit with difficulty; the icy crust was treacherous, and the wind kept blowing him off his feet. The view was stunning, with spruce trees bent with a thick layer of sparkling snow and ice hunched in front of the snow-

LENNOX JOSEPH IN FIRST LEWIN FORUM—The first session of the three-part Lewin Forum took place at the Gehring House March 28 and 29. Lennox Joseph, Ph.D., advisor to the World Bank and former President and CEO of NTL, led the group in exploring Survival in Conflict: Stories of Community Resilience. Joseph has consulted to numerous organizations, with extensive experience working in Africa, Korea, China, Singapore, Brazil, Trinidad, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, and England. He has appeared on government negotiation teams, is acclaimed as a public speaker at conferences and meetings, and is a qualified expert witness in discrimination cases for the Washington, D.C. Superior Court. In 2001, he was awarded the Herman Stein Award from his alma mater, Case Western Reserve University, for his contributions to International Social Change. Having served in many countries around the globe, Joseph will help forum participants explore community based responses to trauma, violence and loss; communities that have thrived under stress and the price that has been paid for community based values; the resilience of the human spirit in the face of mankind's inhumanity to itself; the healing that can occur under the most bizarre of circumstances; and the role social and community psychology can play in transforming national, political, religious and social conflict. The next Forum session will be April 18-19, facilitated by Charlie and Edie Seashore. For more information, contact Nancy Davis, program director of The Lewin Center, at 256-

I stood there just long enough to get a couple photo shots of Snuffy and the brilliant winter landscapes, before I hurried back into the spruce trees and out of the wind. We had reached there just after noon, about 21/2 hours from the

After a brief stop for a snack of peanut butter crackers and a large orange, we headed back down the mountain. I found myself making much better time going downhill, but I still had to take extra care on the steep places, at times sliding on my butt! Snuffy greeted three dogs hiking up a couple hundred yards ahead of their master, with no major confrontations.

About halfway down, we met six or seven people headed up with backpacks and bedrolls. They planned to spend the night near the summit despite the predicted overnight temperatures in the single digits! As Snuffy and I continued downward, I realized that I had only seen one set of animal tracks (other than dogs) the whole trip, and that was a snowshoe hare in the spruce trees near the summit. No moose or deer tracks. We were back at the truck by 2:30 ugly head again. I must admit that this time it probably is my own grievous fault that it is bothering again.

It has finally begun to snow, what else is new? There have been a lot of birds gathering around here and I think they are nuts. This winter has been way too long and snowy for them to think spring has arrived. It may say it on the calendar, (who reads them the dates, I wonder?), but that is the only place that it has arrived. This has been a hard winter on anyone over 30 and even some of the ones under that are beginning to grumble.

After reading about the number of inches of snow Aroostook County has gotten this year I am surprised that Marcia has not said much about it. Fortunately she has inherited the Flint disposition and, coupled with the wise advice she got from her dad, she seldom complains. Certainly not like her mother who can find a lot of stuff to complain about.

Speaking of Marcia's dad, it has been 15 years this April 15th that we lost him to cancer. Where do the years go?

Crystal and Al Lake returned last week from a week's stay in Florida. I asked her why they didn't bring the sunshine back with them and she said they would have liked to but it didn't work out.

Greenwood The Department Auxiliary served about 65 people at the Town Meeting dinner, March 29. Denise Swan, Missy Wakefield, Tammy Goodwin, Veronica Melville and yours truly worked it. It is so nice to have Missy and Tammy as part of the Auxiliary. They have been such a blessing. Tammy was elected president a couple meetings ago and Missy is the secretary. Denise retained her seat as treasurer. We certainly miss Maggie and Mary but having new, young, blood is great and I am sure they would have been the first

We had Bill Irwin at the church last Sunday. He hiked the Appalachian Trail with his seeing-eye dog, and has written a book about his experiences and a book for children about the dog. He has a black Lab named Colby now, and he told a funny story about that. He was at the airport waiting for someone to come and get him to his plane but no one was showing up. Finally this little lady showed up and started telling him about her dog and what a great seeingeye dog he would have made if he only had had the training that Colby had. "He looks just like him, too," she said. Bill said he figured if he had to listen to doy stories he might as well use it to his advantage, and he told her he would love to hear more stories if only she would get him to his plane, so she did, still talking non-stop about her dog. Bill said he was going up the ramp to the plane when something made him turn around and say to her, "By the way, what breed is your dog?" "Oh," she said, "He's a Chihuahua." He had this slide with his black Lab looking at this little Chihuahua, who was gazing sprung. The snow is melting, the sun has been shining, and there are actually patches of ground to be seen (at least, off the hill). Of course, we need more of the snow to vanish if we're ever going to be able to start planting our gardens.

Sheila Dyke Greetings and hello from Albany Township. Ah! Spring has finally

This winter was a tough one that is for certain. Not just weather wise, but, also with the slew of illnesses that were going around and around and around all winter. Hopefully, once we're all able to open our homes and spend more time outside that will cease, too.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week.

OLSON RECEIVES

COAT—in annual ceremony at the University of Connecticut's School of Pharmacy, Kane P. Olson recently received his white coat, which symbolizes entrance into healthcare professions. The event celebrates students' completion of academic curriculum and is held prior to starting clinical rotations. To wrap up the event the students took the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy's "Oath of a Pharmacist." Olson, a Bethel resident, received his BS in pharmacy last May. After his final semester of class work this spring he will begin a series of clinical rotations; one of which will be in Dillingham. Alaska this fall. Kane has interned at Ketner Pharmacy in Norway the past three years. He is the son of Chris and Cyndy Kane Olson and is a 2003 graduate of Gould the Gehring House on Broad Street, is also the site of many local meetings, retreats, and educational events.

The last class in the Bethel Historical Society's Winter-Spring Course, "Topics in New England History" will be held on Thursday, April 10, at the O'Neil Robinson House, 10 Broad Street. It will deal with New England characters and provide a discussion of those living in Bethel around 1890 mentioned in Joan Kilborn's book "Over the Horizon" to some of the transcendalists in the Concord area of Massachusetts.

Last week's discussion on New England political leaders ranged from a look at political rogues such as James Michael Curley and Benjamin Butler to those noted for political courage including William Pitt Fessenden and Margaret Chase Smith.

Junior Max Littlefield finished with three goals and Johnson and sophomore Eddie Mele each had one.

The starting defensive three of senior Andrew Young, senior Ben Milner, and sophomore Spencer Scribner never left the field and slowed down a potent Berwick offense. Adrian Bouthot and Jonathan Parsons added three goals each and Joe Johnson and Eddie Mele each scored once. American Life in Poetry

Selection and comments by Ted Kooser, U.S. Poet Lauriet 2004-2006

Putting bed pillows onto the grass to freshen, it's a pretty humble subject for a poem, but look how Kentucky poet, Frank Steele, deftly uses a sun-warmed pillow to bring back the comfort and security of childhood.

Part of a Legacy

I take pillows outdoors to sun them as my mother did. "Keeps bedding fresh," she said. It was April then, toobuttercups fluffing their frail sails, one striped bee humming grudges, a crinkle of jonquils. Weeds reclaimed bare ground. All of these leaked somehow into the pillows, looking odd where they simmered all day, the size of hams, out of place on grass. And at night I could feel some part of my mother still with me in the warmth of my face as I dreamed baseball and honeysuckle, sleeping on sunlight.

It's always wise to call ahead

Listings in The Citizen's weekly Community Calendar are compiled from a wide variety of sources. While we do our utmost to ensure the reliability of the information presented here, we recognize that when dealing with such a large volume of material, some inaccuracies will occasionally creep in. And in other cases, a sponsoring organization's plans may change between the time The Citizen is printed nd the event is held. Accordingly, we strongly urge our readers to call ahead to verify the details of any event they plan to attend. Doing so will greatly reduce the chance of disappointment or needless inconvenience.

Parable of Immortality

I am standing upon the sea-shore. A ship at my side spreads her white sails to the morning breeze and starts for the ocean. She is an object of beauty and strength, and I stand and watch her until she hangs like a speck of white cloud just where the sea and the sky come down to mingle with each other.

Then, someone at my side says: "There! She's gone!" Gone where? Gone from my sight,

She is just as large in mast and hull and spar as she was when she left my side, and just as able to bear her load of living freight to the place of destination.

Her diminished size is in me. not in her, and just at the moment when someone at my side says, "There! She's gone"...

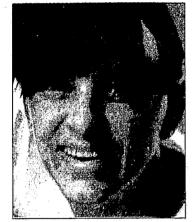

There are other eyes watching her coming, and other voices ready to take up the shout, "There she comes!"

MERLIE KIMBALL STONE

Merlie Kimball Stone, a longtime resident of South Paris, passed away on Friday, April 4, 2008 in her High Street home, surrounded by her family. She was 95 years old.

She was born the fifth child of Leslie and Maude Emery Kimball of Albany, on June 14, Merlie left home at a young age to find her own way in life. while attending Gould Academy, she boarded with various families and worked for them to provide for herself. Although she was unable to complete her high school degree, she possessed a robust education of experience, demonstrated through a strength, determination and appreciation for learning that paved the way for following generations. This legacy lives in the educations of her children and grandchildren, totaling 15 high school degrees, 15 college and secondary degrees and one master's degree. The third generation is well on its way to further her strength and influence.

At 20 years of age, she fell in love on the dance floor in Waterford. Knowing at first sight she had found her partner, she married Herbert Stone on June 14, 1933, her 21st birthday. The pair enjoyed 58 wonderful years together prior to Herbert's death in 1992. In addition to being a dedicated wife, mother and grandmother, she was also a proficient homemaker, her culinary prowess was no secret to the many who favored the recipes from her kitchen.

Her work efforts took her out of the home as well. For many years she took in boarders and worked seasonal jobs in farm and recreational businesses. In later years, she would work as a repairer in local shoe shops, a career that lasted for over 30 years.

She enjoyed a very active life. Keeping up with her fam ily afforded her many opportunities to fravel. She loved the chance to see some place new, but was always ready for a trip to Florida. All of her adventures didn't require great distance, however. She was on the go all the time attending her grand and great-grandchildren's ball games, recitals, graduations and birthday parties. Much of her best family time was just being at camp with as many of the family around as possible.

She was a member of the First Congregational Church of South Paris. She was active in their Ladies Circle and attained the title of "Popover Queen" for her efforts at the annual Church Christmas fair. She also enjoyed attending the meetings of the United Christian Women and was a longtime member of the Rebekahs.

She is survived by her children and their spouses, Carleen and Henry Morton and Elwood "Stub" and Jeanie Stone of South Paris, Judy Stone of Portland and Roger and Donna Woodward of Lovell. She was the proud grandmother of 11 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren. Her family was, and eternally will be, her greatest achievement and the pride and joy of her life. She also leaves many near and dear friends, especially Marie Turcotte of Portland. She is also survived by two sisters, Helen Jewell of Norway and Eleanor Frechette of South Paris; a sister-in-law, Evelyn Kimball of Albany; and many nieces and nephews. She was predeceased by her brothers, Ralph, Arthur, Clarence and Lawrence Kimball; and sisters, Eva Barker, Mildred Bennett and Florence Graves.

Family and friends may call at the Weston-Chandler Funeral Home, 45 Main Street, South Paris, Wednesday from 5 to 8 p.m. Funeral services will be held on Thursday, April 10, at 2 p.m. at the First Congregational Church of South Paris with the Rev. Donald Mayberry officiating. Interment will be later in the spring at Bisbeetown Cemetery, North Waterford. In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to the First Congregational Church, 17 East Main Street, South Paris, or to the Judith Stone Nursing Scholarship, Development Office, Maine Medical Center, 22 Bramhall Street, Portland. ME. Online condolences may be shared with her family at www.westonchandler.com.
